Gen Grant's Campaign.

The failure of Gen Grant to take Richmond has been the theme of divers long winded leaders in the secession sheets of the North, followed by a few wolf intended Union journals, whose editors for want of due reflection, allowed themselves to be involved into denunciation of the present campaign of the Potomac as a "miserable failure" We cannot see our line of patriotic duty in such a course We cannot discover either patriotism, truth, justice, or good sense in denouncing as a failure an undertaking of such magnitude in so brief a period when were it already an accomplished fact, it would stand, upon a page alone, without a parallel in the annals of warfare. If General Grant had arrayed his command against any well guarded city possessed of ordinary fortifications, with the sole purpose of taking that city, and without any regard to the wiping out of a great wickedness which spreads through the surrounding country, and is as imminent in all prominent places in the rear and on either flank as it is in front, we have no doubt that the city would have fallen With the moral effect of capturing the City of Richmond, he has to produce a physical effect upon other cities, extending for hundreds of miles in distance, and ultimate success requires that the results of his campaign be experienced simultaneously through the whole infected region If the grumblers at Grant's "failure" could cite an instance from history to prove that Richmond could and should have been taken in the period they have allotted to him, why are those instances not presented? It is less than four months since the commission of Lieut General was bestowed on Gen Grant, since that time he has re organized an army, prosecuted a most brilliant and effective campaign, done more hard fighting and won more victories thus far, than any other man that ever lived Nor is his campaign ended If his life is spared, it will only end with the fall of Richmond and the crushing out of rebellion

The siege of Sebastopol, conducted by two of the most powerful and professionally warlike nations extant teaches a lesson which it would be profitable for the enemies as well as weak friends of our Government to con and remember. The South, armed and equipped with the best our country afforded drilled in secret and for a long period in anticipation of what fell upon the peaceful North like a thunderbolt, commanded by officers educated at the expense of Government in Northern schools and skilled in all the strategy of modern warfare, have accomplished—what? Have they achieved any success? Even with the assistance of England and France from abroad, an united people at home, and an immense score of aid and comfort from traitors, spies, and copperheads in the North the area of freedom is gradually surrounding and contracting their forcably held dominion, until the "Confederacy" is being compelled to change its emblem of treason and fly the cross instead of its 'stars and bars," for the "same" are becoming extinguished and soon will remain upon their dirty rag but a glimmor jack o'-lantern from out a Southern swamp, fit emblem of the ignis fatuus their deluded people have follwed since guilty of treason The Louisville Journal opposed as it is to the Administration of Mr. Lincoln, is compelled by a sense of duty to the country to sustain Gen Grant, which it does in the following able manner

Grant was confirmed Lieutenant General on the 2d of last May, in five days he was in Washington, and in one week after his appointment he issued his order calling the 11th and 12th army corps from the Mississippi river to the Potomac In about seven weeks his re organization was complete, and on the 5th of May he opened the campaign on the Rapid Ann, so that he has not yet been two months in the field It was over two years from the time Gen. Grant assumed command of the Army of the Mississippi until Vicksburg was taken. The attempts to accomplish that object by direct assault always failed, and all the operations at Young's Point, Milliken's Bend Port Hudson, Warrenton, Brunsburg, Grand Gulf Port Gibson, Fourteen Mile Creek, Raymond, Jackson, Champion Hill, Big Black Bridge, &c, were links in the chain of strategy which finally invested Vicksburg on all sides, the Union troops forming a semicircle, with both flanks resting on the river, on the 20th of May Then again direct assaults were made, which were repulsed On the 23d Gen Grant commenced the regular siege, and in six weeks to the very day, the place was unconditionally surrendered

Now Gen. Grant is a man of action, but at the same time he is prudent, and has succeeded in compelling the rebels to concentrate their armies in Virginia and Georgia, which has had the happy effect of liberating a vast extent of territory, giving him and Sherman bases of communication which can be kept open, and at the same time most seriously menacing the rebel lines of supply Let those who complain that no results have been attained consider that it was on the 12th of May, 1861, when Admiral Farragut first demanded the surrender of Vicksburg, that it was the 25th of June, 1861, when Grant assumed command, and the 4th of July 1863, when the surrender of Vicksburg was achieved How ridiculous it is, then, to expect that the capture of Richmond should be accomplished without something of the same kind of operations It was the 12th of January, 1861, when the rebel Governor of Mississippi erected the first batteries at Vicksburg For months after that its siege was opened by the Union forces, and it took two years and two months, less one week to finish the siege We certainly cannot expect Gen Grant to accomplish impossibilities nor has any one a right to say that he has not effected decisive results Thirteen months ago we were accustomed to hear the same kind of cavilling on the Vicksburg campaign, and fault finding was as common then as it is now If Richmond cannot be taken by assault, it will be by a regular siege If it requires 26 months, with the assistance of the ironclads and gunboats under Farragut, Porter, Pilot and other naval officers to take Vicksburg, let us have a little patience with Grant before Richmond In the brief and characteristically modest reply which this distinguished officer made to President Lincoln, when accepting the commission of Lieutenant General he said

"With the aid of the noble armies who have fought on so many fields for our common country it will be my earnest endeavor not to disappoint your expectations I feel the full weight of the responsibility devolving on me I know, that, if it is properly met it will be due to those armies and, above all to the favor of that Providence which leads both nations and men"

In this spirit let us put our trust in Grant he has never failed to accomplish his designs though he has encountered temporary checks his magnificent army is in the finest spirits and God's blessing is on the holy cause of a people fighting for the preservation of their national unity and the most valuable privileges of free governments

FROM THE PLAINS —The Oregon Sentinel of the 27th has a letter from Lieut McCall of the Oregon Cavalry, dated Camp Gibbs, August 4th from which we extract the following

We left Camp Maury on the 7th of June, for the Harney Lake country, in accordance with the orders of Brig Gen Alvord, to join the command of Capt Curry, at the north east end of Harney Lake We reached Harney Lake valley on the 11th of June and encamped at Malheur Springs about sixty miles from our depot Here we met the Ashland people consisting of thirty-two in all—with a large amount of stock This road we found full of emigrants, and entirely exposed to the Indians. I have no doubt but for our presence many of them would have lost their lives as well as their property Harney Lake Valley is about 150 miles in circumference and 50 in diameter It is surrounded on the north and east by a low range of mountains, and on the south-east is a high range of mountains that are covered with snow the most of the year, to the west is a low range of hills, running out into a sage desert There are two lakes, viz Harney Lake, that is brackish as sea water, and what by some is called Tule Lake This is fresh water, but unfit for use except in cases of extreme necessity as the water, owing to the great number of geese and other wild fowl that live here, is what might aptly be termed tinctured of guano The country along the north and east of the base of mountains is generally good, small streams coming an from the mountains and sinking in the margin of the valley, where there is good soil, and consequently good grass

Capt Curry left here on the 2d inst, for his depot, 150 miles distant, on the east side of the snow mountain This morning, Capt Small, with 40 men, and 15 days' rations, left for a point in the mountains north To morrow Capt Drake, with 40 men, and 15 days' rations, will leave for the country east of here I will be, consequently in command of the depot till their return Our stock is much worn, some are very thin The grass is becoming dry, and before this time we are ordered to be in, will be entirely dried up We have been within 80 miles of Boise river, and within 60 or 70 of the road leading from Virginia City to the Owyhee. We found the country full of emigrants—men, women and children, with their herds and households I think the Legislature should make an appropriation for a monument for Lieut Watson, whose remains are now interred at Fort Vancouver, and I would be glad if you would make an effort to have it done

The Indians in Surprise Valley, near Goose Lake are hostile The settlers and Indians have had a brisk little fight, in which twelve or thirteen Indians were killed, and one white man wounded in the arm

BLONDIN OUTDONE —A ROPE WALKER IN OIL CITY, PA —On the Fourth of July, the residents of Oil City and surrounding country witnessed the accomplishment of the feat of walking across the Allegheny river on the wire cable of Lay's Ferry, an inch in diameter The performer of this feat was Mr J B Allen, who is understood to have had no previous practice or experience, and is only an amateur in the wire walking business The wire used on the occasion was 1,000 feet long, and was suspended at the height of eighty feet above the surface of the river Mr Allen's apparatus consisted of a flag staff set into the end of a piece of ordinary gas pipe, surmounted by an eight feet flag This staff was about thirteen feet above, and nine feet below the wire To the end of this was a balance weight of seven and three quarter pounds This staff was run upon the top of the wire by means of a pully wheel, not fastened in any way to the wire, and was drawn over by the walker

The large crowd that had assembled to witness the performance lined the banks of both sides of the river About four o'clock Mr Allen got upon the rope on the Latonia side of the river, and proceeded on his perilous journey, which he accomplished in safety much to the satisfaction of the spectators As usual in such cases, a number of bets were made and a large amount of money changed hands Mr Allen relied entirely upon the generosity of the spectators for remuneration and upon a collection being taken up, $150 was contributed, which was handed over to him,

CURE FOR THE SMALL POX —The treatment of small pox in the State Almshouse in Massachusetts where the disease has prevailed during the last three months, has been singularly successful Out of about sixty cases, but one fatal result has occurred, and that was in the case of a man who was taken to the house from a neighboring town in the last stage of the disease The remedy used with so much success was a tea made from a plant known in the Materia Medica as Barracedia Purpura, familiarly called Ladies' Saddle or water cup, the medicinal virtues of which lie in the root The effect of the remedy, which has been newly discovered and found remarkably efficient when ever tried, is to allay the fever and irritation caused by the formation of pustules, which are rapidly dried up, leaving but slight, if any traces of the malady

GEN MCDOWELL —We are informed by Brig Gen Alvord that Gen McDowell may be expected this evening, he having determined to come over land from Olympia to Monticello and thence up in one of the Cowlitz mail steamers instead of taking the trip around by sea on the Revenue steamer Shubrick, as was previously reported That our Department Commander is no feather bed soldier is evinced by his total disregard of all the considerations of his personal comfort in the discharge of his responsible trust, and we have no doubt that upon his return to San Francisco Headquarters he will be able to comprehend every requirement of the service and ready to meet every emergency that may arise in this Department, whether from Indians, or traitors, without qualification, fear or favor His record is a good one and his official acts thus far have endeared him to every lover of his country

SUPREME COURT —The Supreme Court of this State will meet at Salem, on the first Monday in next month

Our public speakers are richer than the Arabs, who are said to have only a thousand words for one thought

Opinion of the Supreme Court of California on the 'Specific Contract Act"

The following decision, rendered upon an appeal from an inferior court, is of considerable importance and will be read with interest by the business community The case was a contract to pay $500 in gold coin, which defendant declined to fulfill, but tendered greenbacks, which were refused

The exceptions taken on the rulings and judgment of the Court in the premises as to the validity of the Act of the Legislature of this State passed on the 7th of April, 1864 commonly called the "Specific Contract Law" in so far as its provisions relate to the points involved in this controversy

The first section of this Act provides that "In an action upon a contract or obligation in writing for the direct payment of money made payable in a specific kind of money or currency, judgment for the amount specified in the same kind of money or currency expressed in the contract" The third section of the Act provides that the execution to be issued on such judgment shall state the kind of money or currency in which the judgment is to be paid, and that the Sheriff to whom it is issued, upon receiving such execution shall refuse payment in any kind of money or currency, and in case of levy and sale of the property of the judgment debtor, he shall refuse payment for any purchaser at such sale in any other kind of money or currency than that specified in such execution

It is a cardinal rule in the construction of statutes that every reasonable intendment is to be made in support of their validity But when we first see that the Legislature has transcended its powers in the passage of an Act which is repugnant to paramount law and, moreover, the most important duties of the judicial authority, to decree the invalidity of the Act so passed

By the laws of this land the country is furnished with three kinds of money—1, silver and United States notes—as a medium of exchanges Money made by the coinage of gold or silver is a legal tender for any amount by law in the discharge of obligations, which are to be satisfied by the payment of money in general terms and we have held in Parker vs Faulkner, and in other cases that the notes of the United States, issued by the authority of the laws of the United States, are a constitutional and authorized currency, and that such lawful money and legal tender in the payment of private debts But it does not follow that every kind or any kind of money which by law is a legal tender in the payment of debts is by law declared in satisfaction of every obligation or capable of performance by the transfer and delivery of property in satisfaction of it

In Bank vs Fault nor we said, upon good authority that gold and silver are commodities, the value of which is estimated by the value of other things in the same manner as that of the latter is estimated by the means of gold and silver. That quality or characteristic of the precious metals is not always regarded by their divisibility into pieces for the purpose of the Mint and possessing a specific value ascertained and regulated by positive law If one agrees, contracts to pay or deliver to another a given number of dollars, he may perform his contract by the payment of dollars of the same denomination of value which he agreed to pay, and when in any suit or action for the recovery of money merely It generally matters not by what specific act the contract shall be performed By the limitted and settled rules of law such a contract can be performed according to the agreement of the parties only by the payment of the kind of money specified Is there anything in law or morals opposed to such a contract? If not, what objection can there be to enforcing it in case its voluntary performance is refused That a creditor may have sued for money of a particular kind, the Acts of Congress making United States notes lawful money and a legal tender in the payment of debts seem to have contemplated It may have to pay duties on imports and debts beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the United States and for these uses these Government notes are not a legal tender Necessities of the kind suggested exist in no special degree. Both United States notes are the usual media of exchange as verified by every day's experience The importer of merchandise must have gold and silver money to pay the duties imposed by law while from various causes he may or can be discharged his pecuniary obligations to the Government He must have metallic money for the purchase of such merchandise, because the paper currency of the Government will not answer the purpose abroad The importation of goods from foreign countries is a lawful trade, which Congress, under the Constitution may tax but to which it has from time to time, by what means is the moral act who is engaged in this species of trade to provide for his successful—that is for the payment of his debts abroad and his duties on imports at home—unless by securing payment from his debtors in the kind of money which he needs and is about which he is not absolute in the business And such is the case here It will be answered that he may sell his goods for ready money and notes, on credit, and thus secure a price in gold and silver and the purchaser from him must in his turn, also sell for like ready money in order to be enabled to pay the duties and the consumer must also provide himself with the same kind of money, or it be derived from what source of industry it may, to pay for the goods he may need for consumption

If the owner of property may sell the same for metallic money to be paid concurrently with the sale and delivery of it we can see no reason why he cannot sell for it at some kind of money to be paid at a future day Also on credit by the customs and laws of trade recognized as legitimate and used to be consistent with good conscience and sound morals

It is sometimes argued that the Act of the Legislature under consideration terminates invidiously in the discrediting of United States notes We are unable to perceive wherein There is certainly nothing in the Act itself that can justify any such inference It authorizes a contract made to mean the Act of Congress making United States notes lawful money and a legal tender in the payment of certain debts, it might be established with more meaning than this But Congress itself has limited the cases to which the notes can be applied, and has provided expressly that in certain cases of trade they shall be used and that in the crediting of United States notes there shall be no discrimination between them and gold and silver coin, that is, that the parties to contracts or obligations and that, by implication, the Courts of law are called on to enforce such contracts Where is certainly nothing in the Act itself that can justify any such inference It authorizes a contract made to mean the Act of Congress making United States notes lawful money and a legal tender in the payment of certain debts, it might be established with more meaning than this But Congress itself has limited the cases to which the notes can be applied, and has provided expressly that in certain cases of trade they shall be used and that in the crediting of United States notes there shall be no discrimination between them and gold and silver coin, that is, that the parties to contracts or obligations and that, by implication, the Courts of law are called on to enforce such contracts The right to its enforcement is consistent with good faith, and with the dictates of a scrupulous and exact justice Then is the Legislature competent to provide for the creditor a remedy to compel his debtor to do what he has solemnly and freely bound himself to do? On this point there can be no doubt unless the Act under consideration is in derogation of the laws of Congress making United States notes lawful money and a legal tender in the payment of debts Upon the decision of this question our judgment must necessarily depend

Before a Court, duly appreciating the assurance of its duty, will declare an Act of the Legislature invalid, as contravening the laws of Congress, a case must be presented in which there can be no rational doubt for it is not on slight implications and vague conjectures that the Legislature is to be pronounced to have transcended its powers, and its acts to be adjudged void

It is insisted on the part of the appellant that as the Act of Congress making United States notes lawful money and a legal tender in the payment of private debts is a paramount law that no State currency or state laws for the discharge of all debts or which are to be satisfied by the payment of money This is one we have already observed in respect to debts that are payable in money generally, but as to the contract which is the foundation of the judgment in this case it is not a contract for the payment of money merely It generally matters not by what specific act the contract shall be performed By the limitted and settled rules of law such a contract can be performed according to the agreement of the parties only by the payment of the kind of money specified Is there anything in law or morals opposed to such a contract? If not, what objection can there be to enforcing it in case its voluntary performance is refused That a creditor may have sued for money of a particular kind, the Acts of Congress making United States notes lawful money and a legal tender in the payment of debts seem to have contemplated It may have to pay duties on imports and debts beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the United States and for these uses these Government notes are not a legal tender Necessities of the kind suggested exist in no special degree. Both United States notes are the usual media of exchange as verified by every day's experience The importer of merchandise must have gold and silver money to pay the duties imposed by law while from various causes he may or can be discharged his pecuniary obligations to the Government He must have metallic money for the purchase of such merchandise, because the paper currency of the Government will not answer the purpose abroad The importation of goods from foreign countries is a lawful trade, which Congress, under the Constitution may tax but to which it has from time to time, by what means is the moral act who is engaged in this species of trade to provide for his successful—that is for the payment of his debts abroad and his duties on imports at home—unless by securing payment from his debtors in the kind of money which he needs and is about which he is not absolute in the business And such is the case here It will be answered that he may sell his goods for ready money and notes, on credit, and thus secure a price in gold and silver and the purchaser from him must in his turn, also sell for like ready money in order to be enabled to pay the duties and the consumer must also provide himself with the same kind of money, or it be derived from what source of industry it may, to pay for the goods he may need for consumption

OREGON GRAPES —We received a basket of grapes from the fruit store of D Farg Aly, yesterday, which are samples of the products of our State soon to be a formidable rival of our queen sister of the Pacific coast California. This fruit was grown at Oregon City and its rich clusters attest the fact that while our neighbors of the sunny region bordering on Oregon might desire to monopolize the wine interest of the garden spot of America is not alone confined to their State but this is nearly as well adapted to the vintage. California has an advantage over us acquired through her position being the as soon as now we have ever received from California grapes may be shipped to San Francisco as evidence of what Oregon can produce, and be presented by Mr Farg Aly's agent to the principal wine merchant of San Francisco, from whom we obtain our greatest encouragement. The present is the first season of success ful experiment in the grape growing culture and the results is quite satisfactory We are still in the rudiments of everything pertaining to a developed state of prosperity but we think our exports for the next five years to come will show how earnestly our citizens are striving to accomplish the objects of importance to the country There are at present in the immediate vicinity of Portland and Oregon City no growers who are making the grape culture a specialty, and how the number or character of such operations may be increased we leave for time to tell but the business is susceptible of easy adoption in Oregon and attended with great profit is a question that admits of no doubt, from the best information we are able to obtain

THE NEW PORTLAND PLOUGHING MILL —The castings for the machinery of Mr G W Vaughn's new flooring mill shortly to be erected in this city arrived on the last steamship They are from the famous machinery establishment of Noyes & Co Buffalo N Y, and the entire equipments for the motor works of the establishment will be forwarded to his place immediately It is expected that the building will be completed in time to receive it shortly after its arrival The site selected for this important improvement is on the river bank, between Main and Madison streets The building will be of brick and stone of the following dimensions viz and plan 72 by 80 feet, with a basement story 12 feet high first and second stories 12 feet each, third story 9 feet, and attick—the whole, when completed will make quite an imposing edifice, and add to the material prosperity of that portion of the city Several years since we understand Mr Vaughn made a proposition to other gentlemen in order to enter into an arrangement for such an enterprise, but the plan was not considered feasible, the matter has been permitted to rest until now Builders upon the scheme alone, with every prospect of the most encouraging success We think that there is room for all and there should be no backwardness on the part of our monied men to engage in such enterprises, as it all has a tendency to increase their wealth but the prosperity of the county

SPECIAL MEETING OF THE COUNCIL —There was a special meeting of the Common Council last evening for the purpose of taking into consideration matters connected with the adoption of the new city charter The following members were present, Councilman Starr and Messrs Cook, Bennett, Frazar Gray Langton, Hoffman, McCraken. The meeting was presided by Judge M P Deady and H W Corbett Esq who were invited to participate in the deliberations of the Council in committee of the whole The charter was taken up and read by sections for the purpose of amending portion and altered or amended to accord with the views of the members It being a lengthy document much time must necessarily be occupied in preparing the more important features, which will be submitted to the public at large

ITEMS WE OMITTED —In our review of telegraphic matters in yesterday's issue an old and esteemed resident informs that we omitted one important item in connection with the history of early telegraphic lines in Oregon and refers us to a number of accidents whereby personal injury was caused to the people by having their horses entangled in the wires that were permitted to lay for a time on the road A blacksmith in one of the counties through humane motives, collected a large amount of the wire and stored it in his shop for the owners, but it was never called for Years ago, in the Willamette Valley, men who were passing contracted by accidents occurring in contact with the scattered rolls of wire in those days

NEW SENSATION —The little daily East of the Cascade Mountains in Oregon, has discovered a "more or less" and thinks in a contingency, Captain Strong might be able to report twenty feet of water on the Bar and disturb yourself neighbor, the obstruction in our river is a case of easy comprehension and used by officers best acquainted with the same and to those who are continually wondering why the business of the country does not go somewhere besides Portland preaching that "nature intended this to be the place, we will say they will be compelled to admit at least that our intentions have very strongly been opposed

CORRECTION —The citizens of Oregon City and Canemah contributed during the past week to the Sanitary and Christian Commissions $967 10, at the under rates as follows At a fair given in Oregon City on Thursday and Friday evenings last, Miss McCue and her pupils—Miss Laurie Burns Miss Addie Good, Miss Fannie Soner, Miss Emma and Miss Katie Barclay, Miss Lottie Buck and Jennie Barlow—there was realized $526, at the lectures by Rev Dr Patterson $200 at the same by Rev Dr. Bellows, $241 10

EASTERN LINE DOWN —The Eastern line of the telegraph was reported down yesterday, between Ruby Ranch and Laramie, in consequence of the snow difficulties on the Plains and the threatening demonstrations of hostile tribes render it almost certain that communication will be interrupted for some time unless the line can be kept in operation in advances with the latest news which announced it to be in working order at six o'clock last evening

CIRCUIT COURT DECISION —In the matter of the application of Patterson vs McGraw and others, to quiet title to block 228 in the city of Portland held for decision at the late special term of the Circuit Court, before the Hon Judge Shattuck, finds that there is equity in the bill and it is adjudged that the defendants pay the costs and deliver to plaintiffs a good and sufficient deed of quitclaim, and pay costs of suit

THE CHRISTIAN COMMISSION —Rev Dr Patterson was furnished with a free pass to Astoria and back to this city, by Capt. Holman of the steamer John H Couch last week, and while at that interesting point city lectured to a full audience on subjects connected with the Christian Commission, meeting with considerable success

SHERIFF'S SALE OF FURNITURE — Mr A H Pickens will to day, at 10 o'clock A M, sell on the premises corner of Washington and Front streets, the entire furniture of the Pioneer Hotel, consisting of lots —too numerous for us to mention Please see his advertisement in another column, for the description of this narrative

COMMISSIONED —Cyril H Brackett of San Francisco has been appointed by Governor Gibbs to take acknowledgment of deeds in California for the State of Oregon Mr B is a correct business man and will give satisfaction to such as may employ him

A SIGHT —The condition of Yamhill street between Front and First, presents a subject for the Committee on Health. If we permit the streets to become so polluted with filth as a portion of the is soon to be, we should not be surprised to see a very great increase in mortality reports of the cemetery sexton —I've had one.

THE BROTHER JONATHAN —Our telegraphic report from San Francisco this morning announces that the steamship Brother Jonathan sailed yesterday for Portland and Victoria.

FOUND —The loser of a small, handsome lady's shawl pin, will find it on application at this office It was picked up yesterday morning in the vicinity of the Methodist Church.

War & Retributions in Virginia

We had a hard, dashing, dusty ride from the encampment at Mongohick to the Pamunkey. It was glorious, however, in the early morning to sweep along the winding forest road—the headquarters' flag in advance Wherever its silken folds were unfurled there the two commanders might be found,—Gen Meade, commanding the army of the Potomac, and Gen Grant, the commander of all the forces of the Union in the field We passed the long line of troops, crossed the Pamunkey upon a pontoon bridge rode a mile or two across the verdant interval and halted beneath the oaks, magnolias and buttonwoods of an old Virginia mansion The edifice was reared a century ago It was of wood, stately and substantial How luxurious the surrounding shade, the smooth lawn, the rolled pathways bordered by box, with moss roses, honeysuckle and jessamine scenting the air, and the delicate white pruneflain dotting the green sward! The sweep of land—viewing it from the wide portico—the long reach of cultivated grounds acres of wheat rolling in the breeze like green waves of the ocean, meadow lands, smooth and fair, distant groves and woodlands, how magnificent! It was an old estate, inherited by successive generations—by those whose pride it had been to keep the paternal acres from being diminished, to preserve them from curtailment But the sons had all gone A daughter was the last heir She gave her hand and heart, and the old homestead, sheep, horses, cows, oxen, a great stock of bovines, and a hundred negroes or more to her husband The family name became extinct, and the homestead of seven or eight generations passed into the hands of one bearing another name, a short time before the commencement of the war

When McClellan was on the peninsula the shadow of the war cloud swept past the place One or the negroes ran away, but at that time negroes were not tolerated in camp The campaign of 1862 left the State unharmed. But Sheridan's cavalry, followed by the Sixth corps in its magnificent march from the North Anna, had suddenly and unexpectedly disturbed the quiet repose and security of the old plantation There was a rattling fire from carbines, the uproar of the cannonade, men wounded and dead, a fierce fight, fences broken, fields of wheat and clover trodden, stables, and corn bins, meat-houses ransacked, cattle slain, sheep, horses, hogs, all disappear

But to go back a little. The proprietor of this estate ardently espoused secession His wife was as ardent as he They hated the North They loved the institutions and principles of the Sunny South They sold their surplus negroes in the Richmond market They parted husbands and wives, tore children from the arms of their mothers, and separated them forever. They lived on unrequited labor, and grew rich through raising negro children for the market

When the war commenced the owner of this magnificent estate enlisted in the army and was made a Colonel of cavalry He furnished supplies and kept open house for his comrades in arms, but he fell in a cavalry engagement on the Rappahannock, in October, 1863, leaving a wife and three young children The advance of the army—its sudden appearance on the Pamunkey—left Mrs no time to remove her personal estate or to send her negroes to Richmond for safe keeping Fitz Hugh Lee disputed Sheridan's advance. The fighting began on this estate Charges by squadrons and regiments were made through the corn fields Horses, cattle, hogs, sheep were seized by the cavalrymen The garden, filled with young vegetables, was spoiled In an hour there was complete desolation. The hundred negroes, cook, steward, chambermaid, house and field hands, old and young, all left their work and followed the army Mrs was left to do her own work The parlors of the stately mansion were taken by the surgeons for a hospital The change which Mrs experienced was from affluence to abject poverty, from power to sudden helplessness

Passing by one of the negro cabins on the estate, I saw a middle aged colored woman packing a bundle

"Are you going to move?" I said

"Yes sir, I am going to follow the army"

"What for? Where will you go?"

"I want to go to Washington, to find my husband He ran away awhile ago, and is at work in Washington"

"Do you think it right, auntie, to leave your mistress, who has taken care of you so long?"

She had been busy with her bundle, but stopped now and stood erect before me, her hands on her hips Her black eyes flashed

"Take care of me! What did she ever do for me? Haven't I been her cook for more than thirty years? Haven't I cooked every meal she ever ate in that house? What has she done for me in return? She has sold my children down South, one after another. She has whipped me when I cried for them She has treated me like a dog, sir! Yes, sir, like a dog!"

She resumed her work of preparation for leaving That night she and her remaining children joined the thousand or more colored people who had already taken sudden leave of their masters

Returning to the mansion to see the wounded, I met Mrs in the hall She evidently did not fully realize the great change which had taken place in her affairs The change was not complete at that moment The steward was as there, hat in hand, obsequious, bowing politely, and obeying all commands A half hour before, I had seen him in the cook's cabin, making arrangements for leaving the premises

"I wish that I had gone to Richmond," said the lady. "This is terrible, terrible! They have taken all my provisions, all my horses and cattle My servants are going What shall I do?" She sank upon the sofa, and for a moment gave way to her feelings

"You are better off here than you would be there, with the city full of wounded, and scant supplies in the market," I remarked

"You are right, sir What could I do with my three little children there? Yet how I am to live here I don't know When will this terrible war come to an end!"

But enough of this scene I have introduced it because it is real, and because it is but one of many There are hundreds of Southern homes where the change has been equally great. Secession is not what they who started it thought it would be Retribution for crime will most assuredly come sooner or later The crime of secession was great the retribution is terrible It is going on, never with such rapidity as now, and it will go on not only in Virginia, but in every State which has forsworn its fealty to the Union

There is retribution not only for the crime of secession, but for all the wrong done to the colored race God's scales are correctly balanced. Sooner or later He makes all things even. For every groan, for every tear wrung from the slave by injustice, for every broken heart, for the weeping and wailing of mothers for their babes sold to the far off South, for every wrong there is retribution

This, considered impossible by the scientific world is attested by certificates of analysis from Dr J R Chilton of this city and Prof Booth U S Mint, Philadelphia Its introduction of this discovery was so highly approbated by the Faculty that it was published in the Medical Journals and its two recommended to practitioners (see 'American Medical Monthly July 6, 1856, page 76')

From the army hospital—the bloody battle-field—the mansion of the rich and humble abode of the poor—from the office and the sacred desk—from the mountain top, distant valleys and the off shore isles of the ocean—from every nook and corner of the civilized world—is pouring in the evidence of the astonishing effects of DARBY'S PROPHYLACTION BITTERS Thousands upon thousands of letters like the following may be sent to office

RENSSELAER WIS Sept 16 1864

I was taken in the army hospitals for 7 months—spasmodic rheumatism nearly deaf At AUBURN, NY they gave me up to die I used Darby's Bitters and in two months restored my speech and cured me
